The Fifteenth Amendment-

The last of the amendments which were erammed into the Constitution in violation article in a northern periodical, and other of that instrument and in total disregard of such articles from other gentlemen - all these the manner of ratification provided for by together failed to injure the Democratic the fathers of the republic was the fifteenth. In order to a clear understanding of what we have to say in regard to that amendment we copy the first section of it in full:

"Article XV., section I.—The right of no threats and no abusive language could contribute to such results.

The ron Tat.—The Nashville American can hold its own in a war of words even with

This is peculiar language. It is based upon the fourteenth amendment, which declares that all persons born or naturalized in the United States and subject to the jurisdiction thereof are "citizens of the United States. "Now, if as we think we showed clearly yesterday the fourteenth amendment was never ratified in due form, then there was nothing for the fifteenth amendment to operate upon so far as the negroes were concarned. If the negroes were not "citizens" of the United States at the time of the alleged ratification of the fourteenth amendment, then the fifteenth amendment could not and did not make voters of them. Were they estizens? Not untess the fourteenth amendment made them citizens; for though they had been emancipated they were cartainly not ocitizens." They were merely free negroes. This is not a mere dictum of our own; but is what the United States preme Court decided in the Dunn Scorr case. From the life of Chief-Justice TANEY in Appleton's Cuclopaedia of American Biography we copy the following:

"He [Chief-Justice Taney, speaking for the court] held that the plaintiff in error, Dred Scott, was debarred from seeking a remedy in the United States Circuit Court for Missouri on the ground that he [Scott] was not a cificen of that State, and enun-ciated [the Supresme Court did] the general principle that sugroes could not become citi-zens by the act of any State or of the United Insemuch as in the absence of the fourteenth amendment (which has never been rightfully ratified) no negro could be "a citizen of the United States." It follows necessurily that the fifteenth amendment could not touch the negroes.

But how was the fifteenth amendment ratified? It ought to be sufficient to say that it was ratified under duress to prove that it was never ratified at all. And not only was it ratified under duress, but a State (Georgia) was counted for ratification which rejected it, and was denied representation in Congress until she ratified it. So were other southern States; but Georgia's was a pocultar case.

The fifteenth amendment could not even States had not been wrongfully and unconstitutionally deprived of their representation in Congress. The vote in the Senate on proposing it was-yeas, 39; nays, 13. If even four southern States had been represented in the Senate, the fifteenth amendment would never have been proposed. What a farce it was-or rather what wicked jugglery with the Constitution-thus to pretend to believe that a State which had the right to vote upon the question of ratification did not have the right to vote upon the question of proposing au amendment, Frand, fraud, fraud everywhere.

New York at first ratified the fifteenth amendment, but in 1869 the vote of the people of that State was taken on the question of equal (or negro) suffrage, and a majority of most French agitators. He has been run out ap 4-11 equal (or negro) suffrage, and a majority of thirty thousand was returned against negro suffrage. New York thereupon withdrew her ratification of the fifteenth amendments. But that fast did not prevent Mr. Hamilton.

The cable furnishes just enough of Standard William of the cable furnishes just enough of Standard William of the Lege of the Fish, who had then succeeded Mr. SEWARD as Secretary of State, from counting hers in order to make up the needed three fourths of the State legislatures. By the way, let us my just here that the American Almanac adds to the twenty-nine States officially certified to by Mr. Fish one other State, and thus makes out that thirty States ratified. But the official certificate of the Secretary of Butthat's no evidence that Philadelphia is thirty-seven States ratified. Now if Georgia had the right to ratify after rejecting New York had a right to reject after ratifying, provided she did so, as she did, before State. provided she did so, as she did, before States enough had ratified to make the amendment a part of the Constitution. Ohio also at first | votes of the colored men of the United States rejected the amendment.

Now bear the facts in mind and then read fact. Effecth amendment be says:

"It appears from official documents on file in this department that the amendment to the Constitution of the United States proto the Constitution of the United States proposed as aforesaid has been ratified by the Legislatures of the States of North Carolina, West Virginia, Massachusetts, Wisconsio, Maine, Louisiana, Michiran, South Carolina, West Virginia, Massachusetts, Wisconsio, Maine, Louisiana, Michiran, South Carolina, Honosylvania, Alkansas, Connecticut, I forida, Illinois, Indiana, Near York, New Hampshire, Nevada, Vermont, Virginia, Alabama, Missouri, Mississippi, Ohio, Lowa, Kausas, Minnesoura, Maisouri, Mississippi, Ohio, Lowa, Kausas, Minnesoura, Rhoad Island, Nebrasas, and Texas—in all iwenty-nine States.

"Now, therefore, be it known that I. Hamilton Fish, Secretary of State of the United States, * do hereby certify that the amendmentaforesaid has become valid to sli intense and purposes as a part of the Constitution of the United States.'

Why was Georgia not named among the twonty-nine ratifying States? Why was she put by herself? There can be no reason asput by herself? There can be no reason assigned except that there was on file in the State Department an official document show-State Department an official document showing that she had rejected the amendment,

News has been received here of a difficulty at Seville Friday morning between Mr. G. E. Garth and Mr. George Marshall, in which the former was struck on the head with a club and dangerously if not fatally wounded. There were no witnesses of the tragedy and Garth is unconscious. Marshall's statement, therefore, is the only account obtainable. He says, according to report, that Garth accused him of stealing some of his tools, and was in the act of striking him with the club when he wrenched it from him and dealt the blow in self-defence. Garth is a prominent Constitution should never be so changed as to deprive any citizen of the United States of the school rights and privileges secured by her Constitution as it then stood.
